

Department Of Gujarati : Students Activities during Lockdown

During this unfortunate lockdown, majority of the students had an abrupt halt in their education although that does not necessarily mean that their learning has stopped. As a testament of the previous statement, students of the Gujarati Department went beyond the horizons of the syllabus and ventured into the fields of video editing, script writing, and cinematography.

An individual's general work attitude during this lockdown was to complete daily chores and then rest for the remaining part of the day, which is an extremely unproductive use of the seemingly incessant time during this lockdown. Hence, to raise awareness regarding this issue, students of the Gujarati Department decided to make a video on this topic hoping that people, after seeing the video, make prudent decisions about their lifestyle during this lockdown. The students themselves made the entire video; they wrote the script themselves, they learnt various softwares for video editing, cinematography and sound editing (which helped them make the video), they learned the art of working in a team, and so on and so forth. The department teacher helped the students publicize the video.

They also made two more videos depicting the impact of coronavirus on the public. They also wrote a story on what changes does the coronavirus bring about. Hence, the students of Gujarati Department truly expanded their horizons of learning and self-educated themselves in the aforementioned fields. This just shows that if students are determined then, they can truly make the best out the worst situation.
